

ABSTRACT

A method of entering a presentation into a computer. A dynamic grid is provided by adding graphical objects to a logical container, i. e. an empty presentation page. The dynamic grid facilitates entering of constraints. The constraints can be used as an input for a constraint solver to provide an automatic layout.